HAPPY 50TH ANNIVERSARY FOUNTAIN VALLEY!

The class of 1980 takes great pride in the knowledge that we close out the first half-century of Fountain Valley's existence, and that we are the summation of fifty years of education, experimentation, innovation, and dedication. Fountain Valley has meant many wonderful things to each of us while we were here, and we hope that we can return the favor by helping the school achieve even greater success in the next fifty years.

1980 OWL DEDICATION

CHARLES F. EMERY JR.

The Owl of 1980 is proudly dedicated to a man who has put fourth a large part of a most exciting and interesting life to benefit many aspects of Fountain Valley School. Arriving at Fountain Valley in 1935 as a sophomore, he was a great asset to the school being actively involved in sports, drama, journalism and student government. Now as chairman of the English department 45 years later, he continues to show his love, support, and dedication to Fountain Valley in numerous ways. It is an honor for our school to have this outstanding man among its faculty, and the students are indeed fortunate to have him as their teacher. To you, Charles F. Emery Jr., we dedicate this 50th anniversary yearbook.

SCHOOL LIFE

Once again, first year Fountain Valley students were given a chance to become accustomed to the campus and the Rocky Mnts. during orientation week. Activities began immediately after parents dropping off the kids departed, and lasted until the Sunday before the first day of school.

The new students were first "treated" to a campus tour by proctors, (many of whom didn't know their way around either). Intramural games and get-acquainted meetings were also held, then, as a reminder that F.V.S is a first and foremost academic institution, class placement tests were administered during this fun filled week.

Off-campus orientation was the highlight of the week, especially for those teachers and students who got to stay on campus. In the meantime, other teachers and returning students accompanied the orientees, many of whom had never been on a dirt road before, into the Rocky Mrns.

Some students, surprisingly, were less than enthusiastic about their upcoming adventure. "Are there any snakes and bears up there?" an ignorant third former asked.

"Yes, there are four bears and seven snakes," ansered Mr. Bill Thayer, director of orientation.

ORIENTATION '79

Participants did a variety of exciting outdoor activities in the mountains. Some backpacked near the Rocky Mrns, while others fly-fished and tent camped. The majority, however, took the easy way out, and went to the cabins of Emerald Valley where they were treated to meals fit for a deposed shah (the highlight was a potato and ham casserole-MmmMmm!)

From Emerald Valleyh, a group of students went on a touring trip to Crippl Creek and nearby Fossil beds. Another Group hiked in the hills surrounding the cabin. The hardy ones, however, invested their time in a Pikes Peak mountain climb. Several made it all the way to the top in time to carch the cog railway back down.

During the evening, the students and teachers, for ways to occupy time before meals and bedcheck, did an unsuccessful attempt at a sing along with two gleeclub dropout proctors. Other students found themselves soundly beating the teachers in word games and "killer". A game of human pinball was quite enjoyable until a window was broken.

All in all, orientation week was enjoyable for the participants, providing the chance to get to know one another.

INTERIM WEEK

Interim Week took place between October 27 and November 4 this year. The philosophy behind Interim is to provide a much-needed rest from the daily work routine but at the same time to provide something more than simply a vacation. This year a wide variety of interesting trips and activities was offered. On-campus activities included tennis lessons, photography, fox-hunting, basketball, drama, art, and for the slightly more daring, spelunking in Colorado caves, full of dark crevices, long falls, and bat guano. Off-campus activities also provided a wide range of choices: a trip to Mexico or to Washington, New York, the Green River, Oregon or Lake Powell. Seniors, as usual, had the option to go college touring, as quite a large number of them did.

Once again, Interim was a big success and everybody returned to classes having learned something new and hopefully well-rested.

PRAIRIE FOLLIES OF 1980

On February 28 and 29, Prairie Follies of 1980, Fountain Valley's winter musical, was presented by the school's drama department. As always, the musical was the highlight of the drama "season". This year, however, the show was even more of a special occasion, as it was a complete FVS original. Unlike previous musicals which were Broadway adaptations, this year's was written for the FVS stage by director of the drama department Hunter Frost. The musical numbers (with three exceptions) were also written by Mr.

Frost and musical director Peter Wingerd. The show's plot concerned a fictional school, Prairie Prep, whose students were struggling to put on an original show for the school's 80th anniversary. In the course of the show, the students and teachers played and worked from rehearsal hall to prairie, from Cantina to D.C. meeting. The cast danced and sang their way through this parody of school life, performing several musical numbers with much talent.

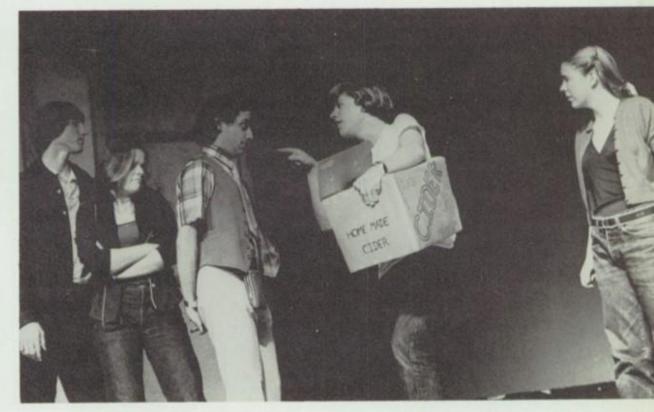

Tony Sanchez warns Anne Adams and Linc Wilson to keep cool and avoid Prairie Prep's D.C.

Upper left: Sometimes Mr. Whippum (John Ginn) does get a bit frustrated, what with producing this whacky show and all. No matter, though. All he has to do is break out into song, this one entitled "Frustration". Left: Musical director, Mr. Peter Wingerd, got into the mood with a little electric guitar. Above: The plot thickens. No No Nixon (Linc Wilson) puts Stanley Straytarrow (Scott Corngold) on warning that if the Administration find out about No No's bourbon ("home made cider"), Stan will be held responsible. (Stanley is known to have a very big mouth.)

DON'T DRINK THE WATER

The F.V.S. Drama department's first production of the year was an adaptation of the Woody Allen comedy, Don't Drink the Water, directed by Hunter Frost. Presented the Friday of Parents Weekend, the play told of the humorous adventures of a New Jersey family, who, while traveling through communist Europe, get rangled in a diplomatic tug-of-war. Starring as the Hollander family were Chris Detmer, Myra Wilson, and Topher Barrett, with John Ginn as the other lead as a bumbling diplomatic official. In colorful supporting roles were Scott Corngold, as an eccentric Eastern-European priest; Lisa Velarde, as an equally eccentric cook; Will McWhinney, as a straight-laced diplomat; and Walter Schweitzer, as a menacing communist policeman. Don't Drink the Water was well-received by the audience, and Mr. Frost again showed his comedy directing skill.

FIRST FALL PLAY

ANTIGONE

On November 30, Jean Anouihl's Antigone, adapted from the classic Greek tragedy by Sophocles, was presented, directed by Christopher Lowell. Unlike the first production, this show had a quite serious rone. Starring Myra Wilson in the title role of a headstrong passionate woman, and Will McWhinney, as an intimidating law-and-order despor, Antigone explored themes of moral-versuspolitical laws in a quite mature and interesting way. The cast was exceptional, with Myra Wilson delivering a thoughtful, engrossing, and subtly shaded performance. In major supporting roles were Chris Detmer, David Bosworth, and Gillian Johnson. Lisa Velarde and Walter Schweitzer were notable for their comic performances in the otherwise non-comic play. With a very simple set, highlighted by a Greek mask, Antigone was a somber, but engrossing, work.

Right: Antigone (Myra Wilson) rearfully sends her lover, Haeman (David Bosworth) away; Below: Creon (Will McWhinney) prepares himself for imminent tragedy.

CUT FROM THE CLASSIC MOLD

THE MOUNTAIN CAMPUS

The mountain campus has gone through a great change this year. It is hard to tell whether more changes have occurred in student attitudes or actual facilities, but quite probably both have blended into the dreams of those who started and promoted this unique experience. A year ago students were camping in tents and learning to ger along with many differences between each other and certainly with faculty that sponsored trips. It was a great feeling to get out of the tent, start the fire, make a pot of coffee, and ear all the food that Ruth sent. Of course the last person to get up had to do all the dishes! All the thank-you's in the world still can't add up to the amount of appreciation felt when rolling out of the tent is exchanged for three inches of foam matress and a wood stove that is still glowing embers in the morning. Later in the day you may work on insulating the building, gathering wood, or sweeping the floor, but when the work is done you are proud that your house is in better order. You look forward to your next trip because you know others are helping you as you contribute to their trips. You're never quite sure about the freedom a ski trip, biology, or math weekend gave you because it seemed like you worked twice on all these trips and yet they were a recreation after the effort you put out into last week's classes. When's the next trip?

THE RIDING PROGRAM

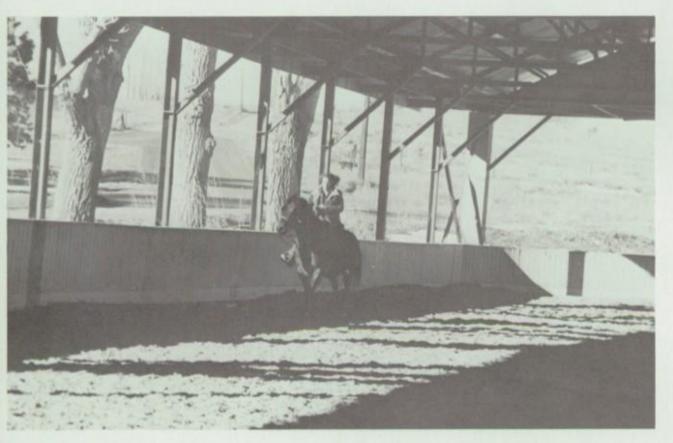

The Fountain Valley School riding program has grown by leaps and bounds this 50th Anniversary year. The annual pack trips rode off to Hidden Pocket as planned, and three new horses were added to the school's remuda. In January and February, Paget Hirsh came to teach English equitation. Her arrival coincided with the conversion of the hockey rink into an indoor riding arena, a new and very much needed addition to the program. The spirit of fine Gymkhana teams has begun here; a spirit that will continue as long as there are horses, open prairie, and dedicated riders.

DANCE

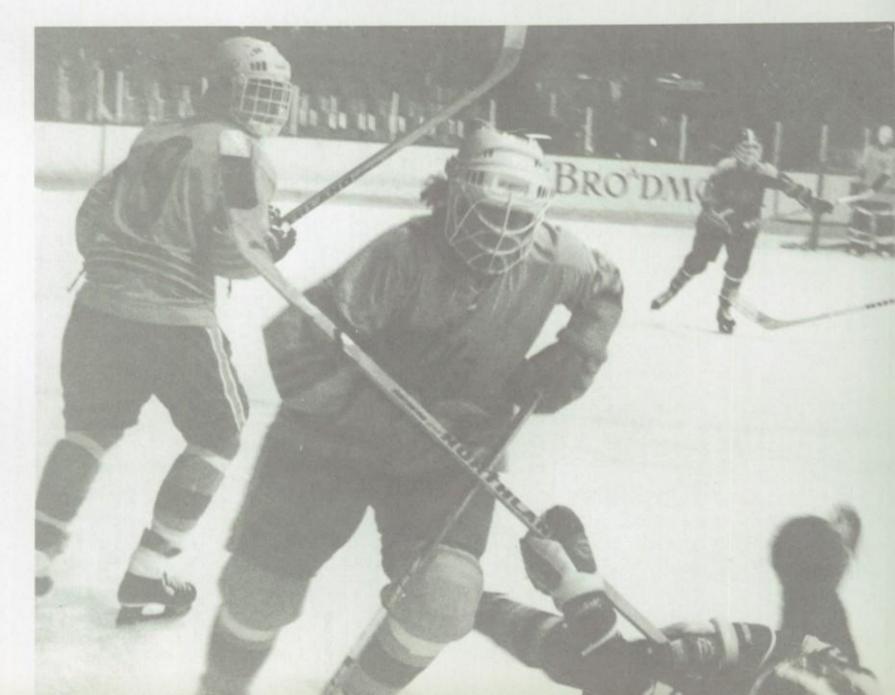

The Fountain Valley dance program this year was considered, as always, one of the most fun and exciting "majors" offered by the school. Headed by a new faculty member, Miss Lydia Harrison, dance was again offered as a sport or as an academic major. Classes usually began with a series of warm-ups, stressing both form and balance which are so important to beginning dances. Warm-ups were then followed by dance routines and improvisations, enabling each of the dancers to express themselves liberally in any form of dance movement. Those who took dance as a major in the fall term put on a recital for friends and faculty. Among the participants were Erin Lewis, Sarah Shaw, Lora Stone, Bob Kayser, Scott Corngold, Shelley Skiles, Myra Wilson, and Kim Williams.

Though the experience of each dancer varies throughout each class, everyone works together, learns together and has a whole lot of fun in the meantime.

"SENIORITIS 1980"

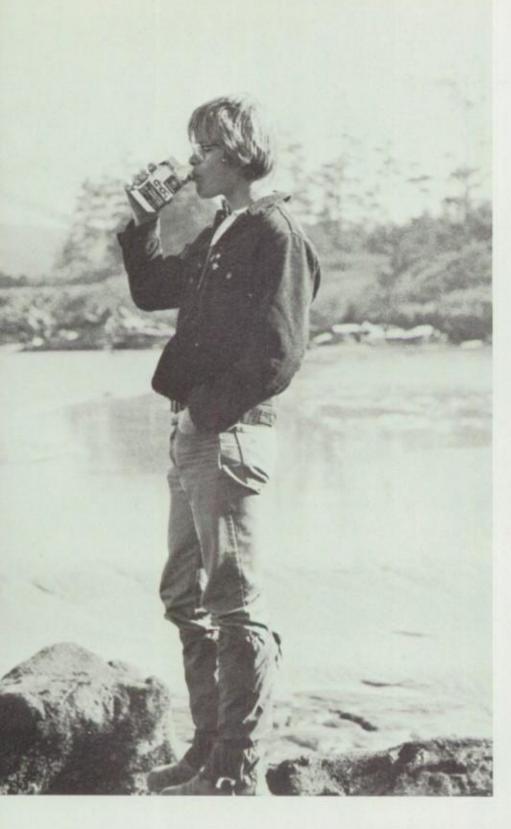

Fountain Valley's class of 1980 came close to suffering a 70's style "identity crisis." Known better as Fountain Valley's 50th graduating class, and facing the prospect of being members of the college class of 1984 (big Brother and all), this year's Seniors took it upon themselves to raise class unity and spirit. One of the attempts was admittedly a failure. Among the brilliant comments made in the last days before Christmas vacation, ("Hey, this is the second-to-last all school meeting of the decade!") the Seniors collectively shouted with pride "We're the first graduating class of the decade" only to find out later that the new decade doesn't acutally begin until 1981.

Other Senior spirit projects were far more successful. On Senior freak day, virtually all the class members threw away their inhibitions and showed what the well-dressed preppie was wearing these days in Colorado. As of this writing, the Senior prank has yet to be pulled. Yet, judging from the imagination of class members, it promises to be a heartfelt display of the Senior's love and loyalty to the ol' Valley. "Seniors-as-school-leaders" was a subject much discussed by the class of '80, as it tried to think of ways to improve the school both physically and spiritually. One plan, suggested by an anonymous Texan, was for the Seniors to plant palm trees along Bradley Rd. Strangely, this idea was voted down. Another suggestion, for the Seniors to raise a class cow, gathered some support. This plan had two advantages — the Seniors could could have both a class mascot and decent meat for the graduation banquet.

The Seniors face a time of transition. With the end of the seventies, they are forsaking "disco" for "nuking". This transition, though, at times seems slow. One still hears the words "have a nice day," and "mellow, man" coming from some Senior's lips, especially the Californians and Aspenites. As the class of '80 emerges into adulthood, they are becoming increasingly concerned about politics and their futures. While helpful faculty members offhandedly suggest colleges, the American government is more forcefully suggesting their college alternative. The possibility of the draft makes even Pike's Peak Community College look nice in comparison.

In Springtime, a Senior's fancy turns to ISP's. After four years of high school, and looking forward (?) to four more years of college, the class of '80 welcomes this trimester-long reprieve from "the rigorous Fountain Valley curriculum." Surviving the FVS jungle, the Seniors undoubtedly will recuperate enough to look absolutely alive and kicking come graduation on June 4th.

I don't know what to do with this page. I could expound upon all the merits of "partying" and Disco, but I don't believe there are any. I could quote numerous scholars and philosophers like Hitler or Sartre, but I don't dig that stuff, man. I just want to say that I've had such a nifty time here at FVS, and everybody has been spiffy. Everybody and everything, that is, except for my American History term paper. To all the third and fourth formers reading this: DO NOT, I repeat, DO NOT fool yourselves into believing that American History is fun, worthwhile or useful. There is not one thing on this entire planet more boring than American History. I mean it! You have been warned, so make the most of it kids. Anyhow, I am dedicating this page (for whatever that's worth) to all those wunnerful people who made me what I am today: a wisecracking, stuck-up cynic who actually is a very romantic fellow deep-down (fools! why can't you all realize that?)

Ar Day's End

Is anybody happier because you passed his way?

Does anyone remember that you spoke to him today?

Now the day is almost over and its toiling time is through,

Is there anyone to utter now a kindly word of you? Can you say tonight is parting with the day that's slipping fast

That you helped a single brother of the many that you passed?

Is a single heart rejoicing over what you did or said?

Is the man whose hopes were fading now with courage look ahead?

Did you waste the day or lose it? Was it well or sorely spent?

Did you leave a trail of happiness or a scar of discontent?

As you close your eyes in slumber do you think that God will say

"You have earned one more tomorrow by the work you've done today!"?

PRIVATE ENTERPRISE

The power to choose the work I do,
To grow and have the larger view,
To know and feel that I am free,
To stand erect, not bow the knee.
To be no chattel of the State,
To be the master of my fate,
To dare, to risk, to lose, to win,
To make my own career begin.
To serve the world in my own way,
To gain in wisdom, day by day,
With hope and zest to climb, to rise,
I call that "PRIVATE ENTERPRISE."

Ah, coherent. That old, old story. All the books are full of it, teachers draw it on the blackboard in every school, the moher dreams of it while suckling her child, lovers murmur it while embracing, merchants tell it to the customers, the customers to the merchants, soldiers sing it on the march, preachers declaim it in church, historians in their studies realize with open mouths what happened long ago and never cease describing it, it is printed in the newspapers and people pass it from hand to hand, the telegraph was invented so that it might encircle the world faster, it is excavated from ruined cities, and the elevator rushes it to the top of the skyscraper. Railway passengers announce from the windows to the countries they are passing through, but even before that the savages have howled it at them, it can be read in the stars and the lakes reflect it, the streams bring it down from the mountains and the snow scatters it again on the summit, and you, man, sit here and ask me for coherence. You must have had an exceptionally dissipated youth.

When I was young, it seemed life was so wonderful, a miracle, oh it was beautiful, magical and all the birds in the trees, well they'd be singing so happily, joyfully, playfully watching me. But then they sent me away to teach me how to be sensible, logical, responsible, practical. And they showed me a world where I could be so dependable, clinical, intellectual, cynical.

There are times when all the world's asleep, the questions run too deep for such a simple man. Won't you please, please tell me what we've learned, I know it sounds absurd, but please tell me who I am.

Now warch what you say or they'll be calling you a radical, liberal, fanatical, criminal, Won't you sign up your name, we'd like to feel you're acceptible, respectable, presentable, a vegetable!

At night, when all the world's asleep the questions are so deep for such a simple man. Won't you please, please tell me what we've learned, I know it sounds absurd but please tell me who I am. -Supertramp

"all my love"

Gina, Tracy, Cindy, Robin, and Betz, for all the memories!

Mom and Dad for everything! "thank you"

Lucia, Shelley, and Laura for being there when I needed you most.

Dave, for making me happy dreams of the future!

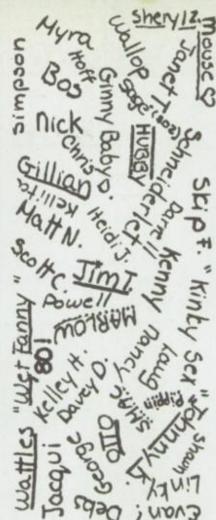

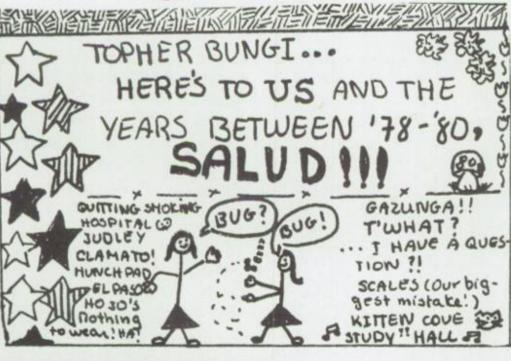

CHEERS to four years-four unbelievable years. Some "DECE" others not so "DECE"-some filled with dedication others filled with ambitions. CHEERS to the end of sleepless nights (like tonight)-some fighting the hours till dawn (ROBIN we tried our damnedest to stop that clock.)-Others thinking the night would never end (the burdens of LEXINGTON GREEN & the supposed TERM PAPERS)-then on occasion some were spent looking for rabbits (Oh, SIMPSON, do you suppose we will ever find CHESA-PEAKE?)-Some nights were possessed with "HURRICANES" leaving abstract murals on dorm walls.-CHEERS to the days gone by-A.F.O.S., PASSOUT & CAPS-(MARLI did we ever complete a full game?)- A "PLEASANT DAY" is always filled with JIM B. & country time. After a pleasant day a cool evening on the prairie with a "FROST" rops off a most memorable day. (Thanks DAVE, LIZ, & JAY) CHEERS to the traditional long winter week-ends in WESTCLIFFE, (DAVID put another log on the fire & JOHN you needn't ride a snowmobile three miles just for a cigarette.) CHEERS to Cataline-"BUFF", "X", "TRIPLE X", I packed my grandmothers truck with A ... (HOFFMAN, I doubt that we'll ever forget how the story goes.) "piggy, piggy hog" (JOEL, don't forget three dimensial mirrors) DAVE The buffalo jokes were great sources of entertainment. & Thank-you MR. STUART for holding the plane & for everything else.-CHEERS to Diaries-they may be hazardous, but their friendship building, (TOAD, thanks for the support & hugs that kept me sane before my flight-for LAURA, well, that's where our story began-& thank-you G&G for not going in the backyard and shooting yourselves.) MAY I NEVER WRITE ANOTHER DIA-RY! CHEERS to my bungies- DUKE, for trusting Susan & I to decorare his apartment.-JAMES (Buck) for his comic relief-LIONELL (uncle Kay), for being his arab self.-GLEN (FROMP), for being my favorite italian.-PENIE (HOG), for putting up with everything I dish out, and To the chick that means the world to me, SUE BUNGIE, I could not make it without you. The Best Of LUCK To All Of You. TRIPLE CHEERS to the two people I love most in the world, GRAMMY & GRANDADDY, you've put up with a lot and never given up, THANK-YOU for making me see the light-CHEERS to the people who made it worthwhile,-for being with me from the start, JOHN K.-for being a best friend, MR. FROST,-to my baby bungie & best buddy, LAURA L. (GAZOONGA, BUG)-for sharing her charm & beauty, MARTINE (AWOOBA BOOBALA)-To the "loving" brother I've never had, JIM T.-for keeping tabs on BUNNY, MR. HENCHEY & MYRAfor the encouragement, STONER, RONNIE & SUNSHINE.-To one hell of a near gal, SANDY.-To my passionate partener on stage, JOHN G. (Mental . . . WHAT!)-But most of all CHEERS to the person I dedicate this page to, who knows what lies in the future, but that doesn't matter, for it's the present you made very special and worthwhile. "HUNNY", I thank-you from the bottom of my heart.-Well, after all these CHEERS we must be drunk, but we mustn't get too drunk, because when we do we forget, & when we forget we have no memories, no memories leave nothingness, but F.V. we do have a lot of memories, so I guess, afterall, you were something.

You may give them your love but not your thoughts, for they have their own thoughts. You may house their bodies but not their souls, For their souls dwell in the house of romorrow, which you cannot visit, not even in your dreams. You may strive to be like them, but seek not to make them like you For life goes not backward nor torries with yesterday. You are the bows from which Your children as living arrows are sent forth. Sooner or later you're gonna find a way
To feel like sunshine even on a cloudy day
To feel like morning in the dead of night
Sooner or later it's gonna be all right
Now don't be thinkin' your life's a mess
Rather start thinkin' in terms of happiness
And it's gonna happen
Just decide where you're goin'
Get out in the open
And start blazin' your own trail again

You are only as free as you make yourself your ties are only your own. You can draw your own string, or else you can leave it loose; It's your choice and yours alone. you can pick up your pack and camp it well; you can make your times harder or take life with style; But you must travel your self-made road. Life can be hard, there are ups and downs, sure; but there doesn't have to be because you make your own pains and bring your own smiles. It's only you who can set yourself free

It's been a good year!

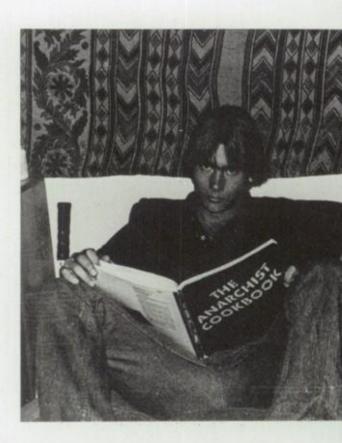

Education is a companion which no misfortune can depress, no crime can destroy, no enemy can alienate, no despotism can enslave. At home a friend, abroad an introduction; in solitude, a solace and in society an ornament. It chastens vice, it guides virtue, it gives, at once, grace and government to genius. Without it, what is man? A splendid slave, a reasoning savage.

Days of contentment—
occasional fears
But there's always a time and a reason for each and always an answer that lies within reach for life is not meaningless, emply or sad
But filled with new challenges—joys to be had—preams to be held very close to your heart and always—tomanow
to make a new start.

I do not know whether or not this world has a meaning which transcends it. But I am aware that at the moment it is impossible for me to know it. What can a meaning which is outside my condition signify to me? I can understand only in human terms.

It Could Be Done Edgar A. Guest

Somebody said that it couldn't be done,
But he with a chuckle replied
That "maybe it couldn't," but he would be one

Who wouldn't say so till he'd tried.
So he buckled right in with the trace of a grin.
On his face. If he worried he hid it.
He started to sing as he tackled the thing.
That couldn't be done, and he did it.

Somebody scoffed; "Oh, you'll never do that;
At least no one ever done it";
But he rook off his coat and he rook of his hat,
And the first thing we knew he'd begun it.
With a lift of his chin and a bit of a grin,
Without any doubting ar quiddit,
He started rosing as he rackled the thing
That couldn't be done, and he did it

There are thousands to tell you it cannot be done

There are thousands to point out to you, one by one

The dangers that wait to assail you.
But just buckle in with a bit of a grin
Just off your coat and go to it;
Just start tosing as you the thing that "cannot be done" and you'll do it.

Mom, Dad, Brothers, Sister, Sister in laws, Tom and all other mends from higher for your moral support.

A peasant once sought out a wise man. "What is the meaning of life?", he asked. The wise man replied, "kumquats" The peasant was so ecstatic with the simplicity of the answer that he rushed back to his village an began to buy all the kumquats he could. The word spread throughout the kingdom and soon, the entire kingdom was buying kumquats with an orginistic fervor.

Meanwhile, the wise man, who owned the only kumquat orchards in the entire kingdom, quickly became the wealthiest man in the kingdom and bought himself a Brooks Brothers wardrobe.

SPRING SPORTS

Right: Kathy Duncan swings for a home run. For a first year team, the girls' softball players did much better than expected. Under the coaching of Mr. Pino, Mrs. Hodges, Mr. Gabrielson, and Mrs. Mariner, the team apparently learned quite a lot about the game, and improved their record. Below is Soccer: Sitting: E. Luckett, L. Rios, K. Brinson, L. Velarde (cocaptain), S. Bertozzi (co-captain), S. Mariner, N. Stillman. Kneeling: M. Elder, R. Brown, S. Ball, T. Barrett. Standing: B. Boyden, (Coach), K. Ross, B. Platts, A. Lehman, V. Forbeck, J. Turrito, T. Parr (Manager), E. Lewis, J. Lobkowicz. Missing: Pam Paluga, Ginny Brown (Manager). After a beginning season that needed organization, and preparedness, the soccer team's co-captains and coach were able to lead the players to fifth place in the league.

HERE IS SCHOOL LIFE THIS SPRING

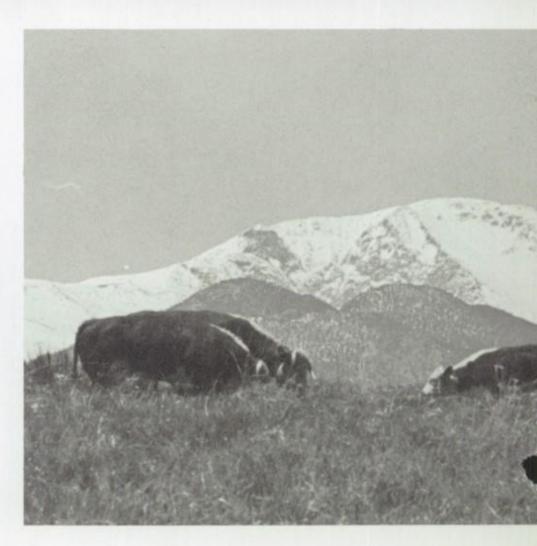

Late May was a time full of end of the year activities like the Prom and the Arts Festival. Below left, Terry Howzell, Paul Mariner, and Kim Brinson take a breather during the dance, and Below, David Bosworth demonstrates one of a number of artistic skills, playing the dulcimer, a folk instrument that has become more and more popular during the past few years.

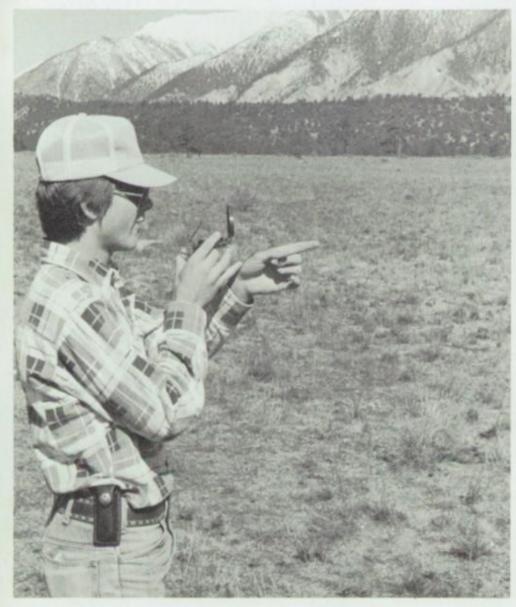

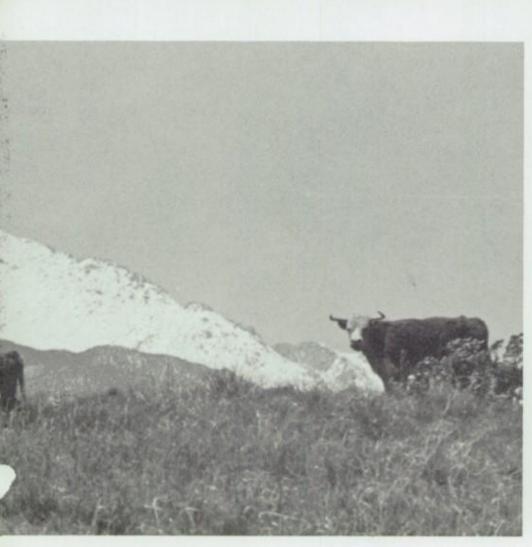

Above: Porter Gould reports gymkhana statistics to Mr. Patren, who was head scorekeeper this year as always. The team's main accomplishment this spring was winning the drill team competition. Right: This typical scene in the school's west pasture is characteristic of springtime in the Rockies.

FOUNTAIN VALLEY SCHOOL GROUP THEATRE

Friday, May 23 8:00 P.M.

This Spring the FVS theatre came alive with many creative productions. Aria Da Capo and The Still Alarm, directed by Mr. Frost, were one act plays. Mrs. Dally Has A Lover was C. Detmer's and T. Barrett's ISP. The musical, You're A Good Man Charlie Brown, was M. Wilson's and S. Corngold's ISP.

MATCHWITS

The Matchwits question and answer show is sponsored by USC and includes many schools from southern Colorado. FV's ream advanced as far as the semi-finals but was unable to compete in the finals due to a technicality. Thanks to the ream's work and brains the FVS Media Center has a new camera (lens cap included). L. to r. M. Kursche, C. Masters, S. Corngold, E. Loo.

CUM LAUDE

The Fountain Valley Chapter of the Nat'l. Cum Laude Society inducted eight new members this spring. Honorary member chosen from the faculty was Mr. Philipps. Students were: K. Leo, P. Paluga, C. Jones, A. Lehman, D. Pohjan, J. Mariner, B. Ehrmantraut and M. Kutsche chosen for their academic excellence. Below left: Society member and departing director of studies Waldo C.M. Johnston, Jr.
